Fanny Brice Was One Of World's Greatest Burlesque Comics

The theatrical career of Fanny Brice, the great American comedienne, who died in Hollywood, Cal., last week, began with an amateur night at Keeney's Theater where she sang, "When You Know You're Not Forgotten By the Girl You Can't Forget." She won the first prize of $5 which was augmented by $3 thrown to the stage by a receptive audience. Miss Brice was now in show business. She borrowed the name Brice from a family next door and began making the rounds of theatrical offices. George M. Cohan and Sam Harris hired her as a chorus girl but the engagement was short-lived. Mr. Harris recognized immediately that she didn't know how to dance.

Miss Brice got a job singing in an 83d Street stereopticon parlor and later appeared at a Brooklyn theater in the role of an alligator in "A Royal Slave." She joined the chorus of "Transatlantic Burlesques," a Hurtig & Seamon show at the Columbia Circle Theater and made quite a hit in "The College Girl", a subsequent production under that management, in which she sang "Sadie Salome," a dialect song written by Irving Berlin. Ziegfeld saw her and engaged her for the "Follies of 1910" at the Jardin de Paris, says the New York Herald Tribune.

In subsequent years she was a vaudeville headliner, touring the United States and England. She played in numerous other shows besides the "Follies"—"The Honeymoon Express," "Nobody Home", "Why Worry", "Music Box Revue" (1924), "Fioretta," "Sweet and Low", and "Crazy Quilt." In 1928 she went to Hollywood to appear in "My Man". Her other films were "Be Yourself," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Everybody Sing" and "Ziegfeld Follies."

Miss Brice's radio career began in 1932 as a singer with George Olsen's orchestra. The program lasted a year, but she returned in 1936 with Baby Snooks. Snooks was a brainchild born at a party in 1921 when Miss Brice was called upon, with others at the theatrical gathering, to entertain. She believed her songs would not be effective in the cramped quarters and invented Snooks in order to tell a story. The guests were delighted and urged Miss Brice to capitalize on the idea. She did in "Sweet and Low", the 1936 "Follies" and later on radio where Snooks, the eternal nuisance, tormented her father, Lancelot Higgins, with such success that by 1946 she was earning Miss Brice $6,000 a week.

Although known chiefly as a comedienne, Fanny Brice first became internationally famous for singing a torch song, "My Man". Channing Pollock wrote English words to the French tune, "Mon Homme," which Miss Brice introduced in "The Ziegfeld Follies." It proved a "natural," since it appealed to every woman who had ever been in love, says the New York Times.

Her classic burlesque and pointed satire formed a hardy perennial of the "Follies" almost every year starting in 1916, when she first did a comic version of a dying swan ballet. Her lampoon of sultry Theda Bara, her take-off of "Camille," with W. C. Fields as the maid, and her travesty on fan dancers and the modern dance, were part of the repertoire of the actress whom Brooks Atkinson of The New York Times described as "a burlesque comic of the rarest vintage."

Her name was almost inseparable from the Ziegfeld "Follies" and, in fact, there was a prevailing suspicion at the time that no "Follies" was authentic without her. She appeared in seven of them.

She was frequently ribald and her sense of caricature was often brilliant. She lampooned evangelists ("I'm a reformed substitute," she rasped at some prospective converts in the 1934 "Follies"), cockneys, ballet and fan dancers, Indians and Russian duchesses. She moved angularly on thin legs and there seemed to be no end to the absurd things she could do with her face.

"With her undisciplined sense of

MRS. ROOSEVELT HEADS U.J.A. IN NEW YORK THIS MONTH

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was named chairman for June of the 1951 United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York. She is leading 20,000 volunteers in a month of campaigning for contributions. In the drive, which began February 1, $24,000,000 has already been raised.

Governor Dewey urged fullest possible support to the Appeal in June to help its agencies carry on the rescue of victims of Fascism and Communism. Almost 100 communities throughout the state will engage in campaigns for the appeal in the month.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she felt that success in achieving the United Jewish Appeal's 1951 aim of rescuing at least 200,000 Jewish refugees from danger areas in the Middle East and Eastern Europe would be "a significant victory at a critical time for the cause of freedom."

Union Honors Employer For New Plant

The New York joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, C. I. O., gave a plaque to a manufacturer for building a new factory. Both the union and the employer regard the structure as "the last word" in the march of clothing workers out of the sweatshop.

The presentation was made at a testimonial luncheon at the Astor Hotel, arranged by the union for Benjamin Goldman, president and founder of Eagle Clothes, Inc. The company, which now operates in a half-dozen small shops in Manhattan and Brooklyn, is completing a $2,000,000 plant to give employment to 1,200 workers in the Erie Basin section of Brooklyn.

Mr. Goldman explained that the safety and comfort of the workers had been a primary consideration in all phases of the plant's design and construction. Among the features are air conditioning, lighting, special devices to cut down machine vibration and arrangements to give each worker double the normal amount of space yet to keep him constantly within a few inches of his source of work supply, says the New York Times.

"We have long dreamed of the ideal factory, in which are combined the most comfortable and healthful working conditions and the most scientific production methods," Mr. Goldman said: "Now that dream is a reality."

Louis Hollander and Anthony Froise, co-managers of the union joint board, hailed the factory as a great achievement. "Mr. Goldman has not yielded to the pessimism that grips some employers in our industry," the union leaders declared. "He has confidence in America and in the New York clothing market.

"His investment in this plant will pay dividends for him, for the

Sees End Of U.S. Zionism If None Go To Israel

David Ben-Gurion, Prime Minister of Israel, told a cheering group of 500 young Zionists that the new nation's growth depended on fostering the Halutz movement, under which young pioneers are encouraged to settle on the soil in Israel. He was the guest of honor at a reception and meeting held by the Zionist Youth Council at Congregation Bnai Jeshurun, 270 West Eighty-ninth Street, in New York.

Mr. Ben-Gurion said young Zionists throughout the world shared the responsibility of providing such pioneers to develop backward and barren areas of the land and that failure in this responsibility would seriously retard the country's ability to absorb immigrants, reports the New York Times.

"If American Zionism is incapable of producing a Halutzim movement, then American Zionism is doomed," Mr. Ben-Gurion said. He said his nation also needed "skill and know-how" and that the nation could be developed only on the "highest achievements of science and technology."

On the eve of his departure for Israel, Mr. Ben-Gurion also called on the American Jewish community to provide scholarships under which Jewish students could study for a year at Hebrew University in Israel. He suggested that a third of the year be devoted to working in settlement projects.

BRITISH TO PROBE RESTITUTION DELAYS

An official committee to investigate the progress of the program for restitution of property to the victims of Nazi persecution in the British zone of Germany has been appointed by the British Foreign Office and is starting its probe in Germany immediately. It consists of Justice Denis O'Sullivan, Chief Judge of the British High Commission for Germany, chairman; Alex Easterman, political secretary of the World Jewish Congress, of London; and Norman Bentwich, chairman of the United Restitution Office.

The action came after numerous complaints from the World Jewish Congress that German officials in the British zone were delaying implementation of the restitution program. The W J Congress pointed out that, although the law covering restitution in the British zone was promulgated almost two years ago, very little property has been recovered by Nazi victims, whereas in the American zone about $125,000,000 worth of confiscated property has been returned.

The committee was instructed to ascertain the causes of any delays in the disposal of restitution claims and to make recommendations concerning action which the British occupation authorities might take to "remove or reduce" the causes of delay. Under the terms of the official warrant signed by Lord Henderson, Parliamentary Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, the committee is empowered to take oral and written evidence.

Get Tons Of Food In Day For Orphans In India

Trucks toured Levittown, Long Island, N.Y., a sprawling 15,000-home community, collecting food for orphanages in famine-stricken areas of India, and at the end of the day, three tons of dried and canned foods had been brought to the home of Mrs. Irvin N. Pollock, at 6 Knoll Lane, although only one of the community's six areas had been canvassed. Mrs. Pollock, who is chairman of a group of housewives who formed the Levittown Food Committee for India, said that the collections would continue.

Agreements were made with accredited agencies in New York City to assure that the food would be distributed to designated orphanages. Mrs. Pollock said that the agencies include the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service, the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, and the American-Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

"To make sure that people would not mistake us for a Communist front organization, we had the campaign announced at our churches and at the Jewish Community Center here," Mrs. Pollock said.

A sound truck, donated by the local civil defense unit, cruised through the northwestern section of Levittown asking the residents to give food. The driver of a following truck placed an empty carton at the curb in each block. Women block captains canvassed door-to-door. Collection trucks followed within an hour after the cartons had been deposited. Seven collection trucks, together with drivers and helpers, and street maps for their use, were donated by business men.

The Levittown Junior League, a Girl Scout troop and a unit of the Eastern Star volunteered to aid in the collection work. Expansion attics in the homes of committee members will be used for storage space until the project is completed.

Mrs. Pollock told the New York Times that she conceived the idea for the campaign after reading of the plight of the Indians and then standing in line at a supermarket and watching the "tremendous amounts of food passing over the checkers' counters." Three of her friends agreed to help. The Indian Embassy in Washington said it would arrange to have the food transported to India.

Ben-Gurion Says All Israelis Must Learn To Use Arms

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel asserted in New York that in no circumstances would his nation become a theocratic state. He stressed that his Government adhered firmly to the position that all Israeli citizens should be "free to observe their religion as they see fit."

His statement, covering the position of the Israeli Government with regard to religious groups and religious problems in Israel, was issued from his suite at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel after a two-hour meeting with representatives of Jewish religious groups in the United States.

The spokesman for the American religious organizations was Rabbi David Lifshitz, of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada. Other organizations represented included the Union of Grand Rabbis of the United States, Rabbinical Council of America, Rabbinical Alliance of America, Agudath Israel of America, Agudath Israel Youth Council of America, Hapoel Hamizrachi of America, Mizrachi Organization of America, National Council of Young Israel, Poale Agudath Israel of America, and Union of Orthodox Hebrew Congregations of America.

The 65-year-old official, who left the next day for Israel, was the guest of honor at a dinner in the Waldorf arranged by several hundred leaders of the campaign to sell $500,000,000 of State of Israel Independence Bonds. Henry Morgenthau Jr., chairman of the board of governors of the drive, announced that $65,000,000 had been subscribed for the bonds since the campaign began on May 1.

Mr. Ben-Gurion asserted that religion in Israel "is not the monopoly of any single political group." He said that his Government had enacted legislation that the Sabbath "is the day of rest, but beyond that lays down no regulations as to how the Sabbath is to be observed."

Regarding conscription of women for military service, the Prime Minister reported that the question had been debated by the Knesset (parliament) and by representatives of the religious bloc and that a compromise had resulted. Under this compromise, women who have religious scruples against military service will not be compelled to wear uniforms or live in military camps. They must, however give two years of service to the country, while living at home and carrying on their family lives. In view of Israel's present security position, Mr. Ben-Gurion said, it is imperative "that every one learn to use arms to defend both their homes and their country."

Concerning religious education, Mr. Ben-Gurion asserted that his Government "will always carry high the banner of Jewish tradition and culture, but it cannot be said that the religious schools of the Mizrachi or the Agudah are the only schools which should be available to the immigrants or to the older settlers in the country." He added that many religious Jews were not members of religious parties and that it was his Government's duty to provide religious education for those who were not in religious blocs.

The recent cabinet crisis in Israel, the Prime Minister said, was of political nature and not a result of religious controversy, "and as such it cannot be judged in the light of any religious canons or precepts."

At the dinner Mr. Ben-Gurion declared that the "success of the bond issue is vital for our future as a fortress of democracy and as a constructive and creative people working for peace and for the betterment of all mankind."

He expressed the determination of his Government to continue a policy of unlimited immigration, "because we look upon every immigrant as an asset and not a liability."

Ease Release Of Blocked Assets

Important changes in the release of blocked assets of Hungarian and Rumanian Jews by the Administration of Enemy Property on the basis of representations made by the World Jewish Congress are announced in a communication from A. G. Bottomley, Secretary for Overseas Trade, addressed to Sydney S. Silverman, M.P., chairman of the World Jewish Congress (British Section). While up till now "labour service" performed by Jews in Hungary and Rumania had not been recognised as "deprivation of liberty", qualifying for the release of such assets, the Administration of Enemy Property will in future treat Jewish persons forced to perform civilian or military labour service as coming within the terms of the concessions granted to persons deprived of liberty. Mr. Bottomley, in his communication, expressly refers to the "very full memorandum" of the World Jewish Congress which led to the reconsideration of his point.

The Administration of Enemy Property (which is a Joint Department of H. M. Treasury and the Board of Trade) has also agreed to grant releases in cases where Jewish owners of blocked assets were held in "short-term" custody in Fascist Hungary or Rumania, provided the Administration was satisfied that the victim had been held in custody in circumstances of immediate danger. In its submissions and in representations through Sydney S. Silverman, M.P., and Dr. F. R. Bienenfeld, head of the legal department of the World Jewish Congress, the Congress had argued that in Fascist Hungary and Rumania, the arrest of Jews in many cases constituted a means of putting pressure on individuals to surrender their property under the major threat of loss of life or of continuing imprisonment. The period of arrest under such circumstances could therefore not be considered a decisive feature of the persecutory measure, the World Jewish Congress maintained.

The Administration of Enemy Property has finally agreed to extend to September 15, 1947 (when the Peace Treaties with the Satellite countries were ratified), the deadline for filing claims on behalf of heirs of the owners of blocked assets who died as a direct result of persecution. Up till now, release of these assets was made dependent upon the death of their owners having occurred before the cessation of hostilities in 1945. This new relaxation will be applied to German victims as well as to Rumanian and Hungarian Jews.

Warburg Hall Took Ten years To Build

Ceremonies opening the Felix M. Warburg Memorial Hall, a series of exhibits showing plants, animals and man in their relation to each other, were held in New York at the American Museum of Natural History. The hall, which deals more thoroughly with ecology than any of the museum's other exhibits, was opened to the public.

Among those who attended were trustees of the museum, officials of scientific and educational institutions and officials and community leaders of Pine Plains, N. Y., the region portrayed in the exhibits. Among the speakers were F. Trubee Davison, president of the museum; Dr. Albert E. Parr, museum director; and Frederick M. Warburg, a museum trustee who donated the exhibits in memory of his father. An address also was given by Louis Bromfield, author and conservationist.

The new hall, which has been in the course of planning and construction for ten years, takes an area of forty square miles in Dutchess County, N.Y., and traces its geological history and the associations of the plants and animals found there.

Groups Complain To U.N. About Iraq

Five Jewish organizations charged Iraq with violating the United Nations Charter by having passed discriminatory legislation against Jews. The charge was made in a communication to United Nations Human Rights Commission at Geneva, Switzerland.

The memorandum, signed by the Agudath Israel World Organization, the Consultative Council of Jewish Organizations, the Coordinating Board of Jewish Organizations, the World Jewish Congress and the World Union for Progressive Judaism, pointed out that Iraq, in denationalizing the Iraqi Jews, was acting in contradiction to all concepts of law and equity.

The memorandum included copies of Iraqi laws calling for the seizure of the goods and assets of denationalized persons (Jews) as of March 10, 1951. While the Iraqi Jews, now numbering about 50,000, plan to emigrate to Israel, it may be months before this will be possible, the organization said.

three-quarters cup brown sugar
two eggs
one and one-half cups flour
maraschino cherries
one-half teaspoon baking powder
three-quarters teaspoon baking soda
one teaspoon vanilla
three-quarters cup milk

Line cake tin with one-eighth pound soft butter, mixed with the brown sugar. Drain the sliced pineapple, and place rings of pineapple over the brown sugar and butter, with a cherry in the centre of each ring. For the batter: Cream the butter and sugar; add the two eggs, beaten; and mix. Add flour, baking powder and soda, sifted together, alternately with the milk and vanilla mixed together. Pour over fruit, and bake for thirty-five or forty minutes, in a 350-degree oven.

Crusty, Crunchy DINNER ROLLS

● They're really ritzy — and no trouble at all to make, with new Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast! Gives you fast action — light doughs — and none of the bother of old time perishable yeast! Get a dozen packages — keeps full strength without refrigeration!

CRUSTY DINNER ROLLS

● Measure into a large bowl ½ c. lukewarm water, 1 tsp. granulated sugar; stir until sugar is dissolved. Sprinkle with 1 envelope Fleischmann's Fast Rising Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 mins., THEN stir well.

Add ¼ c. lukewarm water and 1 tsp salt. Add, all at once, 3½ c. once-sifted bread flour and work in with the hands; work in 3 tbs. soft shortening. Knead on lightly-floured board until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Cover with a damp cloth and set in warm place, free from draught. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down dough in bowl, fold over, cover and again let rise until doubled in bulk. Turn out on lightly-floured board and divide into 2 equal portions; shape each piece into a long roll about 1½" in diameter. Cover with a damp cloth and let rest 15 mins. Using a floured sharp knife, cut dough into 2" lengths and place, well apart, on ungreased cookie sheets. Sprinkle rolls with cornmeal and let rise, uncovered, for ½ hour. Brush with cold water and let rise another ½ hour. Meanwhile, stand a broad shallow pan of hot water in the oven and preheat oven to hot, 425°. Remove pan of water from oven and bake the rolls in steam-filled oven for ½ hour, brushing them with cold water and sprinkling lightly with cornmeal after the first 15 mins., and again brushing them with cold water 2 minutes before removing baked buns from the oven. Yield — 18 rolls.

RARE ITEMS ARE AT MUSEUM IN N. Y.

The fourth anniversary of the founding of the Jewish Museum of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America was celebrated with the opening of a special loan exhibition of Jewish ceremonial objects and works of art from the private collections of Michael M. Zagayski, of New York. The ritualistic items placed on display for the first time anywhere are among the rarest and oldest in existence. The anniversary exhibition features selected works by such famous artists as Marc Chagall, Camille Pisarro, and the sculptor, Jacques Lipchitz, including the first public presentation of the canvasses of the Polish painter, Maurice Gottlieb, and eleven original Rembrandt etchings of Biblical scenes.

All of the art objects from the Zagayski collections will remain on view at the Museum until early August. The Jewish Museum is located at 1109 Fifth Avenue in the former home of Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, who presented the building to the Seminary in the winter of 1944. It was formally opened on May 7, 1947, and since then has pioneered in the presentation of new Jewish artists to the public. Its many permanent collections of priceless Jewish art treasures and historical objects have made it the foremost museum of its kind in the country. Significant among the current exhibitions is the letter written by George Washington to the Hebrew Congregation at Newport, Rhode Island, on August 17, 1790, on indefinite loan from its owner, Morris Morgenstern.

Avoid forcing a child to eat food he dislikes or does not want. Serve him smaller portions that he will finish. He'll soon ask for more if he needs it.

In a telegram to the President of Bolivia, Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the Western Hemisphere executive of the World Jewish Congress, expressed deep concern at the reported plan of the Bolivian Government to issue an import trade decree which is discriminating against naturalised Bolivians and aliens. The reports indicate that these discriminations are likely to be also extended to the retail trade.

Strife Between Two Parties Affects Farms

Nearly twenty-six years of back-breaking toil and sacrifice have gone into building up Ashdot Yaacov and bringing prosperity and security to the 1,000 men, women and children who live on the cooperative settlement. Now, because of a fierce political struggle between Israel's two workers' parties, the future of Ashdot Yaacov and many more Kibbutzim like it, is unsettled and endangered.

Ashdot Yaacov is a unit of Kibbutz Hameuchad (United Kibbutz Movement) the biggest of Israel's federations of collective settlements. The smallest, Kibbutz Hakvutzot, is purely Mapai, the Socialist party led by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion. Kibbutz Haatzi belongs entirely to Hashomer Hatzair, the dominant group of pro-Soviet Mapam party.

It is only in the settlements of Kibbutz Hameuchad that members of the two parties are found in large numbers. Of Ashdot Yaacov's 466 adults, Mapai has a slight majority. In many of the federation's other seventy-nine settlements Mapam is in the majority and they hold a dominant position on the Central Council of the Federation.

A formal split in the central council was voted and the ideological struggle between the two parties has carried down from the top political level to the settlements. Each kibbutz in the federation presumably will decide its own future. But events at Ashdot Yaacov point the path to which they are heading, says the New York Times.

Separate children's houses already have been established. The next school term each party will have its own school or Mapai will send its older children to a neighboring party school. Although they celebrated festivals, such as Passover, together, Mapam and Mapai party members have virtually no other social contact. The Kibbutz no longer holds a general meeting of both groups.

Events appear to lead irrevocably to a final split in which, if it is possible, all kibbutz property will have to be divided or, more likely, one or the other side will have to leave the site.

In both Ashdot Yaacov and Givat Hashloshs, another settlement of Kibbutz Hameuchad near Tel Aviv, the struggle has come to a climax over the education of the children or on the issue of admitting new members who might upset the majority's position. But these have been excuses rather than the reasons and other excuses would have been found it these were not available.

Nutritionists say a woman will skip a balanced meal for a cup of coffee and some toast, while a man will eat a regular lunch. Doctors frown on the starvation routine for reducing and recommend eating foods that will nourish without attening.

Plan Network Of Conservative Camps

A National Ramah Commission will study ways through which Jewish youngsters in all parts of the United States may benefit from a unique summer camp program, Maxwell Abbell, president of the United Synagogue of America, is chairman. In addition to supervising and shaping the policy of the two Ramah camps now in operation, one in the Pennsylvania Poconos, the other in the North Woods of Wisconsin, the Commission will plan for the eventual establishment of a network of camps throughout the country.

A. P. Schoolman, noted educator and authority on summer camping, is planning how Ramah can best function in relation to the educational program of the Conservative movement. The Ramah camps, in addition to providing the usual camp activities during the summer vacation, seek to teach young people between the ages of seven and seventeen the values of Judaism and the Jewish heritage; the Hebrew language; religious beliefs and practices; dietary laws; public worship; Sabbath and festival observances.

All camp activities are conducted in Hebrew. The program also includes an hour and a half of daily informal instruction, and discussion groups are conducted on subjects of current interest. Camp Ramah, in Pennsylvania, is sponsored by the Philadelphia Branch of the United Synagogue in cooperation with the Teachers Institute of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. The Wisconsin Camp Ramah is under the direction of the Chicago Council of the United Synagogue in cooperation with the Teachers Institute.

After discharge from the "San" the tuberculosis patient must not let his new freedom go to his head. Trying to catch up with the social activities he has missed won't help him to stay "ex". He must live carefully for a long time, taking plenty of rest and good nourishing food and avoiding too much excitement.

Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein, on behalf of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, of which he is president, bought $5,000 worth of State of Israel Bonds. In short ceremonies with Eliezer Kaplan, Minister of Finance of Israel, Rabbi Bernstein said, "This purchase is from our pension and welfare fund, monies normally used to help widows, orphans and elderly sick and indigent Rabbis and scholars. It represents a business investment of our welfare fund — the first we have ever made — with money never used purely for sentimental reasons." The purchase is independent of the subscription of individual Rabbis.

"I'm just going to the bank, Ann"

SHE'LL SOON be back — her cheque cashed, her deposit made, her bank book written up.

Mrs. Johnson's is one of the 3,200,000 new bank accounts opened during the past ten years. Like most people nowadays, she relies on her bank to safeguard her money; she expects her bank book to show how she stands; she finds bank cheques convenient to pay larger bills.

The chartered banks appreciate — and depend on — the confidence of depositors like Mrs. Johnson. For the money which Canadians keep in 8,000,000 bank accounts provides the basis for bank lending. Safeguarding these funds is the banker's first concern.

Shabuoth And The Code Of Sinai

The glorious feast of Shabuoth commences this Saturday Eve. Throughout the world, in Liberal Jewish synagogues, boys and girls pledge themselves on this festival to a life of service to God and humanity by affirming their loyalty to the code of Sinai. For, in accordance with Jewish tradition, it was Shabuoth that the The Decalogue was revealed through Moses to the Jewish people.

No religious document has exercised a greater influence on moral and social life than the Ten Commandments. In Judaism "the moral code" has ever been recognized as basic. The sages have pointed out that in "the Revelation" the Divine Voice spoke in all tongues. All of nature was wrapt in breathless silence when God addressed himself to Israel and gave Israel the Torah. The ancient teachers regard the day of Revelation equally as important as the day of Creation. For, on that day of Torah-giving, there occurred the birth hour of the religion of the spirit. Hence, the Revelation was the most remarkable event in the history of humanity.

Many moderns do not believe in the dramatic story of Sinai as related in Scripture. They believe that the Sinaitic Code came not through a revelation from God but through experience. Man has lived and experienced and discovered through his record of experience a moral code which results in happiness. Israel, so moderns have professed, has shown a predisposition to moral leadership. Hence, from the spiritual genius of the Jew have emerged these great moral truths. Despite the plea of moderns that these Ten Commandments are man-made, hosts of us choose the affirmation found in the authority of God's revelation. Perhaps the very moral chaos of our day is to be traced to the fact that the rationalists and materialists have dethroned God as the motivation for "imitato dei" and life has become demoralized, mechanized, and despiritualized.

But why waste time in debating the origin of the Decalogue? The fact is that the Ten Commandments stand amidst the ebb and flow of the ages. If science has taught us anything it is the recognition of law in the universe; and even as there exists physical law so equally there operates a moral law in the world. Break the moral law and evil consequences do follow. The wages of sin is death. In the realm of ethics, "as a man soweth so he reapeth." Morality teaches us that we are all tied up and dependent upon each other. One need only examine the pages of history to become convinced that evil always descends upon the unrighteous nations or individuals. There is "a power not ourselves that makes for righteousness."

To apprehend the Supreme Mind in the story of revelation we must come to know something of spiritual illumination. As a Jewish teacher I am ever thrilled by the everlasting covenant which God and Israel made at Sinai. Out of this covenant Israel has taken upon itself a mission as the spiritual lightbearer and keeper of the light for all mankind.

If only modern Jews would know the meaning of Israel's goal throughout history, then this burden of suffering that descends upon us in historical intervals would become easy. With the covenant at Sinai, everlasting life was planted in the soul of Israel. Israel thus has become an "Am Elom," an eternal people. Tyrants may come and attempt the destruction of the Jew but the Jew holding on to the Torah has managed to stand by the grave of his traducers.

Our talmudic teachers tell the following charming story. When God gave the Torah on Sinai, at the moment there descended from the heavens "Sefer Vesayot", a book and a sword. These were bound one against the other in combat. And a Heavenly Voice was heard to cry: "Choose one or the other! If you choose the 'Sefer', life will be yours; if you choose the sword, death will be yours." Israel chose the book, the Torah, the code of Sinai. Today, in a war between mind and brute force, Israel remains the dramatic symbol of the spirit and the power of the spirit in the world.

Book Tells Of U.S. Jewish Life In Civil War Period

BY DR. JACOB R. MARCUS, PROFESSOR OF HISTORY, HEBREW UNION COLLEGE

The writing of American Jewish history is coming into its own these days. Maybe Adolph Hitler is partially responsible for this. He destroyed a majority of the Jews in Europe, bringing to an end almost a thousand years of Europe's cultural and religious leadership of World Jewry. Today American Jewry is more important than ever. Almost half the Jews in the world live on these shores. With Israel, the United States will share the spiritual leadership of the ten million Jews who still survive.

Historians now realize that it is high time to record the adventures of this young Lochinvar who has come out of the west, American Jewry. Only recently the National Jewish Welfare Board undertook the sponsorship of the American Jewish Historical Society and its new quarterly. Jewish History Week is a token of this revival of interest in the millenial story of an ancient people in the new world. Less than four years ago, the American Jewish Archives came to birth on the campus of the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, Ohio. The Archives now publishes a periodical which limits itself severely to the American field. It is called American Jewish Archives.

Dr. Bertram Wallace Korn, the author of "American Jewry And The Civil War", now rabbi of Temple Keneseth Israel, in Philadelphia, began his career as a historian at the American Jewish Archives and the Hebrew Union College. As Associate Professor of American Jewish history, he received the first college appointment ever made in the field of American Jewish history. His skill, learning, and familiarity with his work are amply demonstrated in this book on the Jew during the period of the Civil War.

Let it be clearly understood. This is not a book on the Civil War, on the participation of Jews in that great conflict. Those who desire to scan the war records of Jews in the days of '61 may with profit consult the material collected by Simon Wolf in "The American Jew as Patriot, Soldier, and Citizen." Korn has set out to study and to write of certain specific aspects of Jewish life during the war period. He read every available Jewish newspaper published during those years, scanned the general press, and ransacked the manuscript libraries of the country. This is a thorough, scholarly work. It gives the facts, soberly, and interprets them dispassionately and objectively. It is a work which historians may read with confidence and with profit.

Of course, the question of slavery and anti-slavery sentiment among Jews is discussed in considerable detail. The author, quite correctly, demonstrates that the Jews, always sensitive to the influences of their immediate environment, split on this subject just like their fellow-Americans. The Jews of the South were, with practically no exceptions, pro-slavery; those of the North were more divided. Some of the northerners, of course, were abolitionists; others did not think it necessary to endanger the very existence of the Union in the attempt to free the slaves by an appeal to arms.

As we have seen, in the last World War, Jews sent hundreds of chaplains into the armed forces. Dr. Korn, in Chapter Four of his book, points out that during the Civil War, Jews were, at first, not permitted, by law, to enjoy the ministrations of their own clergy. He traces the successful campaign to change the law, a struggle that was led by America's Jewish civic-protective association, The Board of Delegates of American Israelites.

Many years ago, Isaac Mayer Wise, one of American's most distinguished rabbis, said that prejudice against the Jew first manifested itself during the Civil War period. Rabbi Korn has made an intensive study of the problem of "anti-Semitism" as it expressed itself in those days in the North and in the South, in civilian homes and in army encampments. He devotes a whole chapter to General U. S. Grant's unfortunate General Orders, Number 11, which drove the Jews out of certain army districts in the South, on the charge that they were buying cotton from the enemy. Some historians of today are inclined to think that Grant's order was issued for the purpose of removing competing Jewish cotton buyers, and may well have been prompted by the avarice of high military officers and politicians with influence in Washington. Cotton buying scandals were the order of the day.

One of the best chapters in Korn's study is his detailed description of Lincoln's relations with the Jews during his term as President. This is a particularly interesting story. The details of the martyred President's association with his Jewish "foot-doctor", Isachar Zacharie, who served him as a special-agent in the South, makes good reading. We repeat, this is a good book, one of the soundest that has yet appeared in the field of American Jewish history. It is well worth having, it is well-written, informative, and authoritative.

ridicule," Percy Hammond, the celebrated critic, once wrote, "she makes herself, a good-looking woman, uglier than she has any right to be."

Miss Brice had her other side. She was an expert at pathos in the manner of her celebrated contemporary, Sophie Tucker. "My Man" was a prize example. She had been making people laugh for nearly a decade when Florenz Ziegfeld came to her one night in 1921 and asked, "Do you think you can make them cry?" He handed her Channing Pollock's lyrics for the French song, "Mon Homme":

"It costs me a lot but there's one thing I've got
It's my man . . ."

It was a different Fanny Brice who sang the song in the "Follies of 1921"—no grimaces, very little movement; her powerful contralto brought a kind of immediacy to the words and the melancholy music.

She sang in various burlesque houses in New York. One night Florenz Ziegfeld "caught" her act and offered her a job at $75 a week. When she left the stage at the end of introducing "My Man," Ziegfeld gave her a check for $2,500 and said, "You've earned it." Her weekly salary soon reached $3,000 a week.

David Belasco heard her sing the song and began to think of her as a dramatic actress. It was a seed that bore somewhat disappointing fruit five years later when Miss Brice appeared at the Lyceum Theater under his banner in "Fanny", a sagebrush epic in which Fanny Fiebaum (Miss Brice) companion to a wealthy girl, foiled a band of Arizona robbers. Miss Brice stuck it out for sixty performances before retiring to vaudeville to lick her wounds.

Miss Brice was born on Forsyth Street, near Delancey, October 29, 1891. Her father, Charles Borach, an Alsatian, owned several saloons. Her mother, Rose, a Hungarian, brought up Fannie — she later made it Fanny — another daughter and two sons, and made the free lunches for neighborhood saloons. When Miss Brice was a year old the family moved to Newark and two years later went to Paris for two years. When she was twelve, the family was living in Brooklyn and a year later she abandoned formal education and went on the stage.

She was married three times. Her first husband was Frank White, a barber, whom she met in 1911 in Springfield, Mass., when she was touring in "College Girl". The marriage lasted only a few days and she brought suit for divorce. In 1918 she was married to Jules W. (Nicky) Arnstein, only to divorce him in Chicago in 1927, after she had stood by him during his two years' imprisonment, starting in 1924, in Leavenworth, in connection with the mysterious disappearance of $5,000,000 worth of securities.

Two years after her divorce she was married to Billy Rose, the showman, by Mayor James Walker in New York. In 1927 she sued Mr. Rose for divorce, and shortly after it was granted he married Mrs. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, swimming champion, according to the New York Times.

Miss Brice's nose made news in 1923 when she had it remodeled in Atlantic City. Newspapers reported all the details of the operation. Mr. Ziegfeld had publicly stated his objections, declaring that his contract with Miss Brice called for the nose "as is" but she went ahead anyhow and later he forgot his objections.

Miss Brice died at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. Her age was 59. Miss Brice suffered a massive cerebral hemorrhage and was rushed to the hospital from her home in Beverly Hills. She never again regained consciousness, although she was placed in an oxygen tent.

With Miss Brice when she died were her son, William Brice, and her daughter, Mrs. Frances Stark, the children of her marriage to Jules W. Arnstein, and her son-in-law, Ray Stark, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Shirley Brice.

Also surviving are a brother, Lew Brice, of Hollywood; a sister, Mrs. Caroline Russak, of New York, and three grandchildren, John Brice and Peter and Wendy Stark.
